

THE HERALD.

JNO. P. BARRETT, Editor.
CHERO T. SUTTON, Associate Editor.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9, 1881.

The Grand Jury of Christian county returned 129 indictments at a single sitting recently.

The Democrats of Owensboro have determined to meet in convention on the 12th inst., and place a municipal ticket in the field.

It is claimed that John I. Mitchell the new Senator from Pennsylvania is anti-Cameron. The rings in Pennsylvania of late have come out second-best at round.

According to the latest report of John Sherman, Secretary of the Treasury, the decrease of the public debt in the four years since March 1, 1877, amounts to $208,824,739 27.

The Madisonville Times today enters on its fourteenth year with prospects bright as the sheet itself. Zeno contemplates issuing a daily soon—that is to say, in fifty years from date.

THAMES to our friend, Wallace Hall, Marion Centre, Kansas, for a copy of his book paper. We see from it that he is in the Real Estate and Loan business. Wallace will not be found idle long. Though a new man there he will soon make himself known.

SAM GAINES, a negro, was shot and killed in Robertson county, Tenn., near Alleville, Ky., on the night of the 21st inst., by masked men. He had been driven off last fall for incendiaries he was charged with, and ordered not to return. He disobeyed the order and the above is the result.

GRANT is the only majority President the Republicans have ever had. Lincoln, Hayes and Garfield each failed to get a majority of the popular vote of the country. The fact is, the Democrats are stronger numerically today than all other parties combined, and all they lack of success is leadership and organization.

THE Lord deliver the Democrats from any more such contests as the one recently had in Clark county. Thos. G. Stuart, of the Clark County Democrat, was finally nominated for Representative by a majority of eleven votes by the primary election held Saturday, February 26th. He will, no doubt, be elected and make a safe and efficient Representative.

THE Messenger and Examiner thinks that the municipal offices of Owensboro are in danger of being captured by the Republicans, and that in a short time. This is something that the people of Owensboro cannot afford, and it is time for them to awake to a sense of their duties to themselves and to Democratic principles by nominating a straight, strong Democratic ticket and electing it.

THE final repeal of the code duello is fast being accomplished and rightly, too, for it is nothing more nor less than murder. Col. E. B. C. Cash, of Columbia, S. C., has been indicted for murder for the killing of Wm. Shannon some time last year. True bills have also been found against the seconds and the trials are to soon follow. This is as it should be. The idea of giving respectability to murder by giving it the title of an affair of honor is ridiculous.

We see that Hon. Clarence C. McElroy has consented to stand for reelection to the Legislature from Warren county. Mr. McElroy was one of the ablest members of the last session and is one of the brightest young men in Kentucky. He will be re-elected without trouble and will quite probably be elected Speaker, as he is well suited for the position. He has a bright future before him and it will not be long before an appreciative constituency places him in the halls of Congress.

We direct the attention of farmers and tobacco speculators to the advertisement in this issue of the Pike Tobacco Warehouse, Louisville, Ky. Mr. Theodore McKee, late teller of the Louisville Banking Company, is now connected with this house, which is quite an addition to the already popular standing of this firm. We have known Mr. McKee long and favorably, and know him to be an elegant gentleman and a fine business man. Tobacco entrusted to this house will receive proper attention.

THE Cabinet making business since last November has engaged the time and attention of hosts of men. The agony is over and the state made up the nominations made and promptly confirmed by the Senate. While other newspapers were telling who would compose the Cabinet, we concluded to wait until we knew and tell our readers who did compose the Cabinet. President Garfield sent to the Senate the following nominations: Jas. G. Blaine, of Maine, Secretary of State; Wm. Windom, of Minnesota, Secretary of the Treasury; Wayne McVeagh, of Pennsylvania, Attorney-General; T. L. James, of New York, Postmaster-General; Samuel J. Kirkwood, of Iowa, Secretary of the Interior; Robert T. Lincoln, of Illinois, Secretary of War; Wm. H. Hunt, of Louisiana, Secretary of the Navy.

It is to be hoped that under the present administration we shall again have a government—not such a one as we lived under during the administration of Grant nor yet like the wishy-washy incoherence of Hayes, but a government that shall be characterized by fairness and honesty in every department, one of which we may not be ashamed, but on the other hand one that every citizen, be he Democrat or Republican, shall be proud of. After the eight years of corruption under Grant followed by the little less harmful four years of weakness under Hayes, Garfield has an opportunity of distinguishing himself while few men, even among Presidents, ever enjoy. If he brings order out of the chaos which exists in every department, restore harmony between the two great sections of our country and give us an administration free from the bitter blighting spirit which has heretofore distinguished the Republican party, his name may well occupy a place in the temple of fame second only to that of Washington. Will he do it or will he submit to the demagogues of the party and by them be led into the follies and weaknesses of his predecessor or allow the country to be overrun by the political thieves who lurk at every corner ready to fasten themselves like leeches on the body of the nation and draw the very life-blood from its heart? Time will soon tell and in the meantime let us hope for the best.

ALL honor to the company of Boston militia who attended the recent festivities at New Orleans. After having paraded in the city for a time they marched to Greenwood cemetery—they home of so many thousands of Confederate dead—and formed a line in front of the monument erected in memory of those who fell while fighting for Dixie, and facing the statue of Gen. Lee they presented arms and adorned the bust with a shield of flowers as a tribute of respect to the great chieftain. If such a spirit of magnanimity to a fallen foe were displayed by a few more Northern people, all traces of sectionalism would be obliterated from the page of our history, and we should soon know "no North, no South, no East, no West," but only one great country, which shall be in fact as it is in song, the land of the free and the home of the brave.

MEASLES IS.

So Says the Weight of Authority.

The Henderson Reporter and Hartford Herald are still wrangling over the number of the word "measles," the former maintaining that it is plural and the latter that it is singular. Now, the only singular thing about the matter to us is that the HENDERSON doesn't consult the proper authority, discover its mistake and then acknowledge it is wrong like he will find it so recorded. We must not be understood as desiring to be a party to this controversy, for we do not. We saw this radical mistake reiterated by the HENDERSON often than we could bear it, and make this simple suggestion in proper good spirit, hoping it will clear up the pleasure of writing up a blood-scurdling item. Messenger and Examiner.

Well, we'll show you another singular thing, and that is the word measles. We consulted the authorities long before you shied your castor into the ring, and examined them carefully—something, by the way, you have not done if we are to judge from the above effort.

Webster, it is true, places, n. pl. after the word "measles," but in defining he treats it as singular. He defines it "a contagious febrile disorder; a disease of swine, a disease of trees." Now, if measles is always plural, why does Mr. Webster, in defining it, use the singular? The "nice little man" of the M. & E. should teach Mr. Webster to define measles as follows: "Contagious febrile disorder; diseases of swine, diseases of trees."

If measles is plural and never singular, it means more than one disease and should be referred to as diseases. When a man has had measles he has had one disease, or more than one? If but one, then it is a single disease, and a reference to it in that sense should be in the singular number. This whole controversy arose from a criticism in the Breckinridge News, which said: "The measles are bad in Tobinsport, Ind." Did the News intend to convey the idea that the people of Tobinsport were afflicted with more than one disease? If so, then the item was correct, but we do not doubt that the News really intended to inform its readers that a disease was bad, the people were badly afflicted with a disease (not diseases). What disease? Measles. Would the handsome young man say, "Measles are a dangerous disorder, a fatal disease." With the same propriety he could say, "Boys are a great fault; young ladies are a pretty creature." He could also say, "the whooping cough are a severe disease upon children." To get himself out of this dilemma he is compelled to say "measles are a dangerous disorder," or "measles are dangerous diseases." "I have had them," "they came near killing me," "I have them now," "they make me very sick," &c.

Worcester's Dictionary classes the word as Webster does, but in defining it writes of it in the singular just as Webster does. Butler classes it as plural, but none of these authorities gives a single sentence or quotation where, in referring to measles, it is done in the plural; but every time in the singular. Strange conduct, if it is always plural. We call upon the M. & E. to quote a single sentence from a single writer or author of note where measles is used in the plural, referring to it as a disease.

It is claimed by some that there are two different kinds of measles, viz: the bad and the French. If this be true and both kinds were raging in a community at the same time, then the sentence, "Measles are bad in town," might be admissible. If you were to refer to the little red spots and say, "The measles have broken out thickly upon my body," we think you would be correct, but we cannot see the authority for, and good grammar in, such sentences as "the measles are bad," "the measles are raging," "the measles are in town."

The American Cyclopaedia is regarded as the highest and very best authority upon any and all subjects of which it treats. It was prepared with more care than any other work ever issued from the press in modern times. It was edited by George Ripley and Charles A. Dana, and associated with them were Robert Carter, M. Helprin, Rossiter Johnson, Francis

A. Teall and Julius Bing. These seven men are noted for their great learning. Their work was revised by twenty-three of the most learned scholars of the world, among the number Prof. Edward H. Clarke, of Harvard University, Prof. Hunt and Kneeland, of Boston Tech. Institute, Prof. Spencer, of New York, and R. A. Proctor, A. M., of London. These thirty editors and revisers were assisted by nearly four hundred of the most scientific, profound, classical scholars of the world, as contributors, advisers, &c. This work, thus edited, revised and published, comes to us with a greater weight of authority than any other work we know of. In Vol. XI, page 313, measles is treated at length, and, strange to say, these four hundred profound scholars have made judges of themselves just as we did by using the word in the singular number every time. These educated idiots dare to say, "measles are bad."

They should have advised with the brilliant linguist of the Messenger and learned that "measles commence." These four hundred lunatics tell us that "If it take two or three days to complete its course," They should have learned from the wise young man of the Messenger that "They take two or three days to complete their course." They further say, "And when it reaches the feet and legs it often begins to disappear from the face." They should have learned the benefits of that classic young man of the Messenger. Then they would have written it, "And when they reach the feet and legs they often," &c. Listen a little further to these numskulls: "All ages are liable to it." They should have advised with the young man who knows and learned that "All ages are liable to them." Again they say, "It often shows itself in newly-recruited regiments. Why did they not consult the oracle in Owensboro and have learned to write properly. Then they would have advised us that "They often show themselves," &c. Here's another egregious blunder they made: "When introduced into the Pacific islands it proved exceedingly fatal instead of 'They proved,' &c."

Dunglison's Medical Dictionary, revised edition, treats of measles and uses it in the singular every time. Dunglison has the effrontery to say, right in the face of the high authority of the Messenger that "Measles is not dangerous of itself but it is liable to induce pneumonia in winter." &c. Hear him again. "It demands a general antipneumonic treatment. Why Dunglison is surely crazy. Read: "Epidemic measles has occasionally prevailed largely in the military service and has been called camp measles."

Ziessens's Cyclopaedia of the practice of medicine, Vol. II, treats of measles quite extensively, devoting 18 pages to it and uses it in the singular all through—more than 100 times. Such expressions as "measles is contagious," "it has prevailed of old," &c.

Trousseau's Treatise on Therapeutics also treats of measles, and always uses it in the singular. Grammar is derived from the usage of the best writers and speakers, and we have brought such an array of these in favor of the use of measles as singular that we feel fully justified and duly authorized to set it up. For the present we propose to let up on measles. When the M. & E. shows up over four hundred profound scholars and authors, principals of the first institutes of learning in the world who use it in the plural we may have something more to say. After reading this nice young man of the Messenger will no doubt conclude that the weight of authorities tip the beam in favor of singular—Grueile, Starling and Bransford to the contrary, notwithstanding.

We dismiss the subject with the statement that not a single word can be found wherein measles is treated of and the word used in the plural. If there be we have not been able to find it.

The Illustrated Scientific News.
One of the handsomest of publications is the Illustrated Scientific News, published by Munn & Co., New York. Every number contains 32 pages, full of engravings of novelties in science and the useful arts. Ornamental wood work, pottery, vases and objects of modern and ancient art are finely shown.

The March number contains, among various other subjects illustrated, a full description of the manufacture of paper hangings, with engravings; how the deceptive curve is produced in casting the ball by the baseball pitcher, his attitude, how he holds and handles the ball, all fully illustrated. The number before us also contains engravings of Capt. Eads' proposed ship railway across the Isthmus, and a novel hydraulic railway locomotive.

In addition to all this it contains many valuable recipes for artisans and housekeepers. This publication will be found instructive and entertaining to all classes, but will be best appreciated by the most intelligent. Published by Munn & Co., 37 Park Row, New York, at $1 50 a year, and sold by all news dealers.

WAR IN HOPKINS COUNTY.
Two Men Killed and One Wounded.

Eardington was the scene of a terrible tragedy on Monday, February 28th, the particulars of which are as follows: Robert A. Arnold, the marshal of Eardington, who is a brave, fearless officer, had arrested a railroad man for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and was attempting to convey him to the police judge's office. A party of his companions, some seven or eight in number, all more or less under the influence of liquor, attempted to rescue their companion. Marshal Arnold warned them to keep off or he would shoot some of them, at the same time drawing his revolver. They continued to advance, and attempted to or did seize the marshal, one of them striking at him and another grabbing his club, when the officer began shooting. A man named Fulwiler was shot through the heart, dying almost instantly; a man named Dennis Collins was shot through the bowels and will die, and the third man was shot through the thigh. The attacking party then dispersed, and the affair was over in less time than it takes us to tell about it. Marshal Arnold went to the residence of Sheriff Nisbet, in this county, to give himself up, but that officer was not at home. He came on to this place, and early yesterday surrounded himself to deputy sheriff Winstead, and at this writing is under arrest. Madisonville Times.

Lovely Date Dates.

Editor Herald:
The health of the people of this neighborhood is good.

Farmers are all sowing White Barley tobacco seed, some are sowing oats and a few are plowing stubble land for corn.

About half of our farmers have sold their tobacco at unsatisfactory prices.

We have rail-splitting, shrubbing, house-raising, log-rollings and several other kinds of lugs up here.

Several maple sugar camps have been opened here this year.

I should be very glad if some one would take up the dirt road subject and give their ideas as to the best plans for making new levees, their proper width, height, etc., and also touch the road surveys as to their duties and responsibilities.

The letter of Mr. E. C. Hubbard and the reply thereto proved to be very interesting to the common people. It seems that every one is afraid to say anything for fear he will hurt the feelings of his neighbor or some one else.

Spring Lick Letter.

March 27.
Our little town is flourishing. Messrs. Riley & Barnett are buying tobacco here and doing a good business. They expect to buy a hundred thousand pounds.

There are two hotels, two dry goods stores and one grocery, all doing a good business.

Mr. Ves. Edwards is visiting her parents at Owensboro.

Martin Rowe will start to the mountains soon to peddle bark. He expects to get about five hundred cords.

The boys had a little fun yesterday. A young gentleman here wishing to call on a young lady wrote his card and called to a black boy, saying he wanted to give him a ride. The boy replied "I don't want your old rusty dime." The young man approached him and the negro, thinking that he wanted to do him some harm, lit out, with the young man after him, yelling at the top of his voice "Run, negro, run; for I am after you! Run, negro, run and take this card." Some of the boys sitting on the fence remarked as they passed

"That negro ran, that negro flew And that young man also he ran too."

After running the negro under the house where the young lady lived the young man delivered the card himself and as he started off the negro crawled out from under the house and remarked he was in town with pockets full of rocks and didn't propose to be run off in that manner. I'm come to Spring Lick to have a little fun with boys and is going to stay. The young man retreated in good order, but ventured to see the young lady last night, as the darkey had left town.

Morgantown Meetings.
March 5, 1881.

Winter is about to begin. G. W. Neel, an old and prominent citizen of this place, is seriously ill with pneumonia. His recovery is thought doubtful.

Morgantown Deposit Bank has just declared its first semi-annual dividend of four per cent, payable the 15th inst. Its books are open for additional subscription. The stock now subscribed amounts to about $12,000.

A district convention of this Senatorial district will meet at Rochester on the 9th day of April to nominate a Greenback candidate for Senate. Carson, Poole, Harris and Meador will take notice. The Greenbackers of Butler hold a convention for nominating delegates to this district convention on Monday, 14th inst.

The banks, to bulldoze Congress, say that if the funding bill is passed they will retire two hundred million of the currency; this is about 20 per cent. of all the currency issued by the banks began to execute their threat, but their plan was foiled, they interposed their veto to appease them. The execution of this threat amounts to reducing the value of a horse now worth $100 to $80; of one hundred weight of tobacco or of pork from $5 to $3. Is not this a dangerous power to vest in any set of men whose only interest is to decrease the value of your property this week that they may buy it and increase its value next week that they may sell it, and so on, ad infinitum.

M. K. Ward qualified as deputy sheriff on the 2nd inst., and inmediately took the field as such.

Last week's financial history proves two things: 1st—The national banks can rule the law-making power as now composed. 2d—The banks can control prices as their interest may dictate, and create a money panic whenever they choose.

The United States are agitated from center to circumference over the funding bill, which is a proposition to borrow money and bind the country to pay interest on it for many years yet at the same time they are proposing to tax the poor devils of this country $100,000 to build a vault to cover the extra hard money the government has on hand.

Col. L. J. Smith's health is still very delicate. The Green and Barren River Navigation Company have removed the Edison battery and instruments from their telephone offices and replaced them by Bell's patent, which is giving good satisfaction.

T. J. Bunch, our County Clerk, returned home on the 3rd inst. He is looking well. Coley Duncan, who is traveling for W. H. Newman & Co., is here now. He has been at Woodbury this week.

Owensboro Observations.

Mr. Wm. Cery and Miss Annie Mitchell, both of this city, concluded to try their fortune as man and wife, and eloped Saturday. They were probably made happy at Rockport, Ind.

Good coopers in this city make from 20 to 30 dollars per week. There will be a demand for more experienced men in that line as there will be some more distilleries built this spring.

Mitchell & Haynes' dry goods store, in the East end, has been greatly improved by the new shelving, &c. The front will be one of the handsomest in the city when finished.

The quiet village of Livermore was again turned "topsy-turvy" last week by the startling discovery that Dr. W. F. Gillin's drug store had been robbed. Bud Malin was the hero who went in at the dead of night and appropriated for his own use a revolver and $10 specie. The young adventurer was pursued by Dave Tucker and others and "run in" at Mrs. Vincent's six miles down the river. He excused himself by saying that he was "too full." He is now learning at a brick house in Calhoun.

Four barges of Staves and heading were landed at the wharf Saturday evening, all for whisky barrels.

The steamers, Dew Drop and Andy Baum, had quite an exciting race Sunday evening from the head of the island to the city wharf. The Dew Drop, although small, walked away from the Baum.

A delightful masquerade was given by the ladies of the Methodist church, Friday evening, at Mr. W. H. Perkins' on Frederica street. It was well attended, afforded much amusement and was financially a success.

On last Saturday Mr. Philip Zulauf's little child was standing near a red hot stove when its clothing caught fire and before assistance could be rendered it was so badly burned that it died Sunday morning. Mr. Zulauf has the sympathy of the community.

The fire brigade was called out Saturday night. This time two small frame dwellings and a grocery store were consumed. They were situated on fourth street near Troutman & Rarick's plow and wagon shop. Loss $2,000, insurance $300.

Several parties of this place and John Welch, of Calhoun, have formed a corporation and will erect a distillery at an early date in Livermore. It will be known as the John Welch Distillery Co.

No Creek Notes.

March 4th, 1881.
Editor Herald:

Farmers are very busy sowing oats and tobacco seed. The White Barley is the tobacco for the season, though some are not given to the idea that it is the tobacco. In a trip through the country from Green river on the South to Panther creek on the North, I find the energetic class of farmers busy at work. Some few are done sowing oats; others are plowing for corn.

A new school district is called for in this place to accommodate some of the patrons who have to send their children so far to school, the farthest being only three miles, while the line above is only about one mile. This seems as if there is a little unfairness in it, to say the least. There could be a school of thirty scholars formed and materially injure no district. It could be formed from a few of the three districts coming together at a point. Let the commissioner see to this.

Two men, with saddle pockets and whiskey enough aboard for three, went to the house of Mrs. Sarilda Stevens one evening recently, rode to the stables and inquired of her son, Joe, if he had any swapping stock. Alighting, they stabled their horses and fed them and then asked leave to let them remain. They proceeded thence to the house and ordered supper, making such threats as to cause some uneasiness, and purporting to be a deputy sheriff and friend.

They then went across Rough creek to attend to some legal business. On their return, they were met by several who received a severe reproach from Mrs. S., who was absent the previous day. Knowing Mr. Smith to be a clever gentleman and being acquainted with several of his deputies, I think them far above doing such a thing. As this is Mr. Yates' district I hope he will investigate the matter and see who the imposters is, for such conduct is calculated to reflect discredit on our worthy officers.

Mr. Ben McCormack and family, of Davies county, have removed to this vicinity. He has a grown daughter and son, which will make quite an addition to the neighborhood, as grown up young people are becoming scarce in this section.

Married, at the residence of Mr. Stephen Woodward, March 3, 1881, in the presence of a large crowd of friends and relatives, Mr. John Howley to Miss Lizzie French, eldest daughter of Mr. Dank French, Attendants, Mr. Sam Barnett and Miss Eber Woodward. Mr. Theodore Martin and Miss Little Foster. Rev. R. D. Bennett officiated.

Farmers' Tobacco Warehouse COMPANY.
S. E. Corner Main and Twelfth Streets, Louisville, Ky.

FEES REDUCED and equally divided between buyer and seller—Selling fee $1.50 per hhd. Buying fee $1.50 per hhd. No commission charged to seller. Four (4) months free storage to seller. One (1) month free storage to buyer.

For the past ten years identified with the management of the old Farmers' Warehouse (Page & Co.), Louisville Ky.

NOTICE—We have sold the "Farmers' Warehouse," lease fixtures and good-to-the "Farmers' Tobacco Warehouse Co." and commend them to our friends and patrons as worthy of the confidence they have so kindly bestowed upon us.

After the ceremony they repaired to the residence of Mr. Alex. Carson, where a nice supper awaited them; after which, these present indulged in social chat, until a very late hour. Every thing passed off pleasantly and all present say it was a source of great enjoyment, especially to the writer. Mr. Pig French and brother furnished some very nice music for the occasion. Those who know Miss Lizzie are well aware that her gentleness and disposition excites admiration wherever she goes and she always has a smile for every one. To say that she looked the picture of perfect loveliness on this occasion would not feed the public on taffy. As for Mr. Howley, it is needless to comment; even in the French we were made to howl by the Irish. I wish you all the success, luxury and happiness that ever attend man and wife. I congratulate you, John, upon having secured what some people, who have been fortunate enough to secure kind husbands, say is the best and most blessing ever bestowed on man; circumstances not admitting, I can't say positive as to how it is myself.

Some one broke into O. B. Chapman's meat house recently and succeeded in securing several nice hams.

Died, at her home, Feb. 26, Mrs. Atha Chapman, wife of Mr. Clinton Chapman. Mrs. Chapman was just in the spring of her life. Consumption was the cause of her death. She was the heart of her loving husband. During her last illness no one could be more attentive than was her faithful husband. She leaves a husband and several brothers and sisters to mourn her loss.

While in the Crane Pond settlement I gathered a few notes of interest.

C. L. Magan is doing a good business in his line—groceries and liquors. At a recent shooting match, a yellow turkey golden rooster, on the box and brought the neat sum of $10.75. It was said to raise such turkeys as that. Save us some of the seed, Charley.

C. L. Magan has a clock that is a clear weather indicator; when the weather is fine it strikes clear and strong; when cloudy it strikes so dull that you can scarcely hear it in an adjoining room.

Died.—At the residence of her son-in-law, Jos. Westerfield, March 2nd, Mrs. Sallie Taylor, wife of Thomas Taylor. She was deceased in the Bell's Run cemetery, of which church she had long been a member. She was in the 54th year of her age. Several children survive.

As I passed through Pleasant Ridge I stopped at D. Ford's store and saw several goods boxes filled with hen fruit, amounting in all to over $100 over 500 dozen. I am rather intruding on Puerilis Gaudium's territory, but as I can't see just how eggs are to be made into hash, I take the liberty to look and step down.

We are authorized to announce N. J. HARRIS, of Muhlenberg county, a candidate for the office of State Senator in this, the 8th Senatorial District, composed of the counties of Butler, Muhlenberg and Butler, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Judge THOS. C. CAISON, of Butler county, a candidate for State Senator in this, the Eighth Senatorial District, composed of the counties of Butler, Muhlenberg and Butler, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Judge VAN B. RAINS, a candidate to represent Ohio County in the next General Assembly of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

PERSONAL.

Miss Belle Barnes is visiting her father in Caneyville.

Hon. H. D. McHenry and wife returned from New Orleans last Saturday.

Judge T. C. Carson, of Morgantown, candidate for Senate, was in town Monday.

Hon. E. C. Hubbard left for Washington, last week, to attend the inauguration of Garfield.

Will A. Kelly, traveling salesman for John Gates & Co., Cincinnati, was in town Monday.

Dr. W. B. Armendt, dentist, Owensboro, is at the Hartford House, prepared to do any kind of dental work.

Hon. E. D. Walker left this morning for Greenville, where he goes to defend Fleming for the murder of Simmons.

Miss Lizzie Walker, of Hartford, is visiting the family of Mr. Peter Thomas on Main street.—Bowling Green Gazette.

John R. Gore representing the boot and shoe firm of Ingalls & Co., Louisville, was in town several days last week.

Haden Webb, Esq., representing the Pickett Tobacco Warehouse, Louisville, was in town Monday soliciting shipments.

Our young friend, R. C. Duncan representing the wholesale grocery house of Newman & Co., Louisville, was in town yesterday.

E. B. Green, commercial tourist for the wholesale boot and shoe house of Rosenberg & Nathan, Louisville, was in town a few days this week.

Mr. Rufus T. Whittinghill, of Madisonville, Ky., was in town a day or two last week visiting relatives. He was on his way East to purchase goods.

Dr. W. P. Bennett came over Saturday to fill his usual appointment, but as the meeting here conducted by Revs. J. S. McDaniel and B. F. Orr was still in progress, did not preach, but assisted in the meeting.

Dr. N. J. Rains, of Rosine, called on us last Monday and renewed his subscription for the HERALD and Courier-Journal. The Dr. has lately returned from Philadelphia, where he has been taking a course of lectures in Jefferson Medical College. Six years ago he graduated in medicine in Louisville, since which time he has done a large practice and gained quite an enviable reputation. Having just completed a Post Graduate course in Jefferson Medical College, it is needless to say that, as a physician, he is equalled by few.

—Home-made carpets wanted at Anderson's Bazaar.

—An infant child of Rets Duke, of color, died Monday night.

—Monday was County Court day and quite a large crowd of the yeomanry were in town.

—The recent snow and cold spell of weather have set the farmers back with their Spring work.

—Home-made carpets will be taken in exchange for sewing machines at Anderson's Bazaar.

—A Sewing Machine for sale, good as new, at a bargain. Call on one on J. P. Barrett, HERALD office, 7-7-4.

—Rev. G. J. Bean will preach at Mt. Vernon Church next Sunday, and on the second Sunday in each month until further notice.

—Persons keeping boarding houses should examine the stock of towels and table-linen at Anderson's Bazaar. They are bargains indeed.

—MARRIED—Raley-Heverin.—At the residence of the bride's mother, February 23d, 1881, by Rev. G. J. Bean, Mr. C. E. Raley to Miss Zelle Heverin.

—Mr. E. H. Basham left this office last week an ear of corn, every grain of which is of a deep purple color. We have given it a place in our budget of curiosities.

—Mr. J. L. Hill is still improving his saloon and now has one of the neatest in town. When you visit Hartford call on him. Next door to Thomas & Kimbley's drug store.

—We were visited Monday evening by Mr. James W. Ezell, of Enterprise, Ind. He is apparently in better health and looks younger than ten years ago. Of course he remembered his subscription to the HERALD. His improvement in health and appearance being with the commencement of reading the HERALD. Will other delicate sickly persons take the hint.

—D. M. Ferry's famous garden seeds, at Mrs. L. H. Eldon's.

—One barrel of syrup, the finest in town, at Mrs. L. H. Eldon's.

—Mr. F. M. Heverin is making quite an addition to his building on Market street.

—Baker's Pain Expeller cures pain in man and beast. For use externally and internally.

—Dr. Roger's Vegetable Worm Syrup instantly destroys worms and removes the secretions which cause them. 10-13

—If the Spring season continue to come in like they have for the past week, we will have to issue a postal extra.

—Mr. Thomas Shidels, a well-to-do citizen of this county, living near Cromwell, died on Sunday last. He was about 65 years of age and apparently in good health at the moment of his death.

—Campaign is over and those who were up in arms against each other and the political tussle now join hands and march to the drugstore for a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure. See advertisement.

—Oh say! young man if you want to take your girl for a ride, and can't on the account of the lameness of your horse you should procure a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure at once, for nothing is better for man or beast. See advertisement.

—James W. Howard, son of Geo. W. Howard, near Whiteside, Davies Co., has a pig with 12 teats. It has six on one side and four on the other and four on each hind foot. That pig is entitled to the horns for toes. Bring out your pigs and let us hear from you.

—Z. A. Rosenberg left Saturday for the East to purchase a large lot of Spring and Summer dry goods and clothing. His goods will reach here about the last of the week and those wishing something nice, new and not by would do well to await their arrival.

—L. D. Taylor, a son of Jo. B. Taylor, living near Cromwell, a young man about 20 years old, fell off his horse in a wagon run on the road between Len Leach's and J. J. Leach's last Saturday and was drowned. He was subject to fits and it is supposed he had a fit which caused his fall. He was found a short time after his death by Jesse Snodgrass. His remains were interred Sunday evening near Liberty Church.

—Captain Sam. K. Cox has a new deputy clerk. The new deputy is quite a young man, having made his debut into this country only about seven days ago, consequently has not learned to speak English very fluently as yet. He has had many visitors since his arrival who compliment his good looks. He is the favorite and especial guest of Capt. Cox and wife.

—Messrs. Semmon, McGee & Co., proprietors of the Pike Tobacco Warehouse, Louisville, Ky., after close of sales Monday last report: "Our market showed more animation to-day, with prices a shade stronger for all grades of dark tobacco; lugs strong at 31 to 41; leaf at 7 to 8 and scarce. Sales during week, 1,621; month, 1,447; year, 12,122. Receipts, 680 hds. against 1,490 last week."

—MARRIED—At the residence of Noel Tichenor, Esq., Thursday, March 3d, 1881, by Rev. W. P. Bennett, Mr. M. W. Bell to Miss Mattie C. Tichenor. Attendants: Mr. John T. Barnard and Miss Meekie Tichenor. After the ceremony the company repaired to the residence of J. D. Bell, Esq., where an elegant supper was served, after which came music and a few pleasant hours of social pleasurable. The happy couple have our best wishes.

—Dr. W. P. Bennett comes again this week with another article in reference to the recent meeting held here. We must say that we are at a loss to know what Bro. Bennett wants. He first attacked us for not giving the meeting that notice which he thought it entitled to, and now, since we have corrected the notice, admitting that the meeting was a success, etc., he is still unsatisfied. If Bro. Bennett will let us know exactly what he wants we will try to please him and stop this controversy.

—Among the sylvan groves and rural districts of our glorious old state, where the wild flowers bloom and unite their sweetest fragrance, there is found in abundance nature's healing balm for many of the aches and pains which the human flesh is heir to. These roots, herbs and flowers have been developed by chemistry and improved on by science and application; and their wonderful elements have been compounded, and are now offered to the public in the name of Crooke's "Never Fail." For sale by Thomas & Kimbley druggists, Hartford, Ky.

—Finley Stevens died very suddenly last Sunday night. He had just returned from Evansville, where he had gone on a raft of logs. He was taken sick Sunday morning about 1 o'clock, and died Sunday night. Suspensions were aroused on the account of the suddenness of his death, and an autopsy was determined upon. Dr. S. L. Berry, who had been with Stevens in his last hours, assisted by Dr. J. E. Pendleton, went down Monday evening and examined his stomach, but found no evidence of poison. They pronounced it a case of pernicious miasmatic fever.

—In an account of a swell wedding, the young man of the Hartford HERALD, describing the toilet of one of the bridesmaids, says: "she too, rendered her part in a graceful manner." What kind of a performance do bridesmaids generally have to render in Hartford weddings?—Echo.

—We are surprised that a man of Urey's information and ability, and one too, who rumor says is to soon surrender the field of "single entendres" and enter the state of "double entendres," should be so ignorant of the duty to be performed by a bridesmaid. If he is inquiring from a personal standpoint and really wants information, we would advise him to come to Hartford and we will give him a rehearsal, or if necessary we will furnish him a corps of attendants who are already drilled. Come over, Urey, and "she too" will assist in informing you.

—We were visited Monday evening by Mr. James W. Ezell, of Enterprise, Ind. He is apparently in better health and looks younger than ten years ago. Of course he remembered his subscription to the HERALD. His improvement in health and appearance being with the commencement of reading the HERALD. Will other delicate sickly persons take the hint.

New Music.

We have before us a choice selection of new music from the well-known and popular firm of D. P. Faulds, Louisville, Ky., consisting of "Composers' Waltzes," "Wife, Little One and Home," "Dream of the Shepherdess," "Spinning Wheel," "Darling Listen to My Story," "Sing to me, Dearest," "Bright, Bright Wings," "Little Bumble Bee," "Monogram Waltz," "Gustav Lange." Some of the above are written from the golden wealth of teaching minds; written as the birds warble and the flowers exude perfume, naturally and irresistibly. Orders filled with dispatch.

Married.

YONTS—RULE.—At the bride's father's, Muhlenberg county, Ky., March 3d, 1881, by Rev. J. T. Caselder, Mr. John M. Yonts to Miss Susan O. Rule.

DEAR SIR:—The Claytonian Society, of Hartford College, knowing the high estimate you place upon mental culture, your intimacy with the literature of the age and the zeal you have manifested in our noble institution, by unanimous vote selected you to deliver the annual address in June. The undersigned committee was appointed to confer with you and report your decision to the society.

JOHN B. FERGUSON,
MESKEL L. HEVERIN,
CHIEF CREDITOR.

March 7th, 1881. Committee.

Death in a Strange Land.

Geo. Manning, of Orton's Circus and Menagerie, died near this place, on Sunday evening, March 6th, 1881, of consumption. But little as to his early history can be learned. From what we can learn he was born in Ithaca, N. Y., where his family still lives. The funeral services were performed in an impressive manner by Rev. J. S. McDaniel, of the M. E. Church, South. He was passing under the name of George Johnson, and seemed to avoid talking about his early history, family, &c. He was once in the grain business in Illinois, running an elevator and met with reverses. He was heard, in his last illness, to mutter something about his child, but when he discovered that his comrades were listening he hushed and nothing could be learned.

Ithaca (N. Y.) papers please copy.

Administrator's Sale.

I will, at the residence of Leonard G. Gary, deceased, five miles east of Rosine, Ohio County, Ky., on Tuesday, March 15th, 1881, offer for sale at public auction all the personal property of said deceased, consisting in part, of horses, mules, cattle, hogs, sheep, corn, household and kitchen furniture, &c. Terms made known on day of sale.

ARMISTEAD JONES,
Administrator.

Dentistry.

L. Squires, successor to Squires & McGraw, dentists, of Ohio and Muhlenberg counties, is permanently located at South Carrollton, Ky. I will be at King's Hotel, Hartford, Ky., on the 1st, 2d and 3d days of March, 1881, and on the same days of each month following. Teeth extracted without pain by a new process, using neither gas nor chloroform. Artificial teeth a specialty—all styles and prices. Old plates repaired as good as new. Gold and silver fillings from one dollar up. I will go to the house of any person living at a distance who wants a new set of teeth, and extract teeth without extra charge. Parties desiring my services may notify me by mail, or otherwise, at South Carrollton. Will also be in Greenville on County Court days. I will do all work at same price that you can get it at Owensboro or Louisville.

A Card.

Those owing us will call at once and settle. We cannot and will not carry you another year. You may not be surprised to find your notes and accounts in the hands of an officer.

THE BATTLE OF ORTHOGRAPHY.

A War of Words: The Gentle Succession to the Struggle.

There was a little excitement in Hartford as well as Washington on inauguration day. As announced last week the spelling match between the boys and girls of Hartford College came off. Several ladies and gentlemen of town as well as many of the students and teachers of other departments of the College, were in attendance. Both sides were eager for the contest and seemed happy when the hands on the dial indicated 11 o'clock. There had been two previous contests, at each of which the girls had been victorious, and the boys had determined on winning this time at all hazards. The fun began with Miss L. H. S. and Henry Davis to the front. They held their positions very well for a time, but the score was more than Henry could stand. He fell and Rose, her ears to law, but could not see the state of so many eyes and tumbled quickly. The vacancy was filled by William H. Lee, Willie and Ida had no proper outfit for defective memory and both scrambled. Miss Anna Smith and Roy Gregory next engaged in a sparring match, but Roy had no outfit and his letter and was sent to the hospital. Jimmie Phillips answered roll call and made an improper autograph proposal to Miss Anna and was sent to the guard house. Sherman Massey, sleek and "sassy," rushed forward to the fray, but he never lived to see Easter, as he fell in the out-patched days. Henry C. filled the place of his comrade and moved off quite brilliantly, but his star soon sank below an untimely point and he was covered with the shout of oblivion. Thomas Phillips volunteered, but soon surrendered to his superior foe and was succeeded by Henry Taylor, who was pre-determined not to fight and fled from the field. Johnnie McHenry, a brave little corporal took his place. Johnnie and Miss Anna had a tremendous contest and both came near going over the dam. They recovered, however, soon after which Miss Anna gave Johnnie a serious wound in the epiglottis and he was carried off the field in an ambulance. The commander ordered Sam Dix to the fore, who was suddenly attacked with paroxysms of epilepsy, and was relieved from duty by Will Sam Jarboe, who faced the enemy and soon forced Miss Anna to retire. Miss Rose Woerner kept time to the martial music and held her own a long while, but in an important movement she took the wrong ally and was cut off by the enemy. Miss Lucy Morton was quick to the front but had no show in orthography and was denied further close in that action. She capitulated and Miss Mattie Luce took the danger line, but she was in a desperate mood and yielded quickly. Miss Nona Patterson was anxious to re-unite the demoralized forces on her side and close up their broken ranks, so tried her hand at synthesis, but the effort failed. Miss Lizzie Moore threw herself into the breach, braved the storm and prevented a stampede and proved herself worthy the steel of her wily foe. After a long contest, in which neither gained any advantage, they mutually agreed to withdraw and let the contest be decided by reserve forces. J. M. Westerfield and Miss Mary Mosley crossed swords, but were neither triumphant. Godfrey McHenry and Miss Mary Ellen Tribble took their places in the field. Godfrey stumbled into the ditch with Westerfield and Jared Robertson shouldered his knapsack and started for the field of action, but took intermittent fever and died too dead to resurrect. James Bennett made a gallant charge, shouting the battle cry of freedom and fighting Miss Tribble from the field. Miss Lida Walker measured lances with Mr. Bennett, and like the snakes that swallowed each other, they deprived each other of life and the field was vacant. General D. Luce took command and threw out a challenge, which was accepted by Miss Anna Bean. Miss Anna was soon wounded and bled profusely. She failed in her transference effort and swooned away. Miss Bettie Dix determined to puncture General Luce's epiglottis, but failed. Miss Bona Paget fell an easy prey to General Luce's prowess. Miss Mary Rial came out for a trial, but General Luce proved to be her conqueror from the contest. Miss Jessie Davis came to the scratch, but shared the fate of others gone before. Miss Allie Anderson tried the General's fire, but like those preceding her, she wilted. Miss Ada Baird attempted the role of intrepid, and succeeded in retiring herself, as well as General Luce, from the field. James Carson and Miss Hester Carter came to time very reluctantly, as though neither expected to hold out long, and the sequel proved that they did not inter-act. C. W. Phillips and Miss Ella Seacore followed them. Miss Mattie Fulkerson and Mr. Dulin were next in rank, but Miss Mattie capitulated and was relieved by Miss Ella Carson. Dulin had never been on the other side of the globe, and was not familiar with an autograph. He mistook it for one who lived in the antediluvian days and so got taken in. Earnest Anderson fled right and with a forward march was bringing himself nobly into action, but he ran on to an auto-mantle enemy and received a mortal wound. "His sword not yet quipped" until he examined the weapon and wound for himself, after which he reluctantly gave up the ghost. Walter Hubbard soon yelled enough and Willie Hardwick marched up and with his footling piece gave Miss Carson a deadly wound. Miss Nellie Davis marched to the rear ornamented in bric-a-brac style. Miss Mollie Hayden retreated in good order. Miss Fidelia Hayden held the fort till her bric-a-brac got smashed. She regarded this as an ill omen and retired in confusion. This closed the contest.

We surveyed the field and found twenty-four of the vanquished hors de combat; twenty-one of the victors crying writhing under the wounds received. There were two of the victors and one of the vanquished engaged in the conflict unseathed, while the victors had a reserve force of five not called into action. The victors began the engagement with twenty-eight and the vanquished with twenty-five. Every inch of ground was closely contested, and while the boys won they have nothing to boast of. The point of victory was awarded to the boys. Girls, don't give up, dare them to try it again. You can flax them next time.

Extra-ed.

From the undersigned, in Hartford, about three months ago, a young red mulch cow and sucking calf. Any one giving information in regard to the above cow and calf will be paid for their trouble.

How to Secure Health.

It seems strange that any one will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when Scovill's Sarsaparilla and Stillinger, or Blood and Liver Syrup, will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the best blood purifier ever discovered, effectually curing scrofula, syphilis, disorders, weakness of the kidneys, erysipelas, malaria, all nervous disorders and debility, bilious complaints and all diseases indicating an impure condition of the blood, liver, kidneys, stomach, skin, etc. It corrects indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health restorer, for it acts like a charm, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system. 7-10-13

McLean County.

ISLAND STATION, March 6, 1881.

Editor Herald:—Our neighborhood is peaceful and serene; while some of our neighboring precincts have been hounded themselves with heavy railway taxes. We deeply sympathize with them, as we have felt the sting to a small extent, but soon freed ourselves from the letters of a railroad company.

The Owensboro & Nashville road under its present management is doing a large business. The company have a very pleasant and energetic set of officers. I think James Lewis is a first class conductor.

I am happy to know that Scribble, who is a resident of Point Pleasant still represents me. He is a fluent writer.

FRESHWATER.

Well, I do not want a newspaper discussion either. Never will I did intend to correct a report that, many regarded, unjust to all the parties concerned. And I did think it was only necessary for Bro. Barrett to see the meeting he so unjustly reported.

I once heard of a man that owned a horse was 16 feet high; and when his attention was called to the statement, repeated it. Had he been the Local Editor, on the second round he would have sworn the horse was 32 feet high. I feel now like asking pardon for attempting to correct Bro. Barrett and proposing to be guilty of such an indiscretion again.

You will oblige me very much if you will publish this just as it is written.

Rosine Rumors.

March 7.

Editor Herald:—We are having plenty of rain, snow and mud at the present. The farmers have decided not to sow any more oats for a few days.

Prof. D. M. Hocker opened up a select school last Monday for a term of 16 weeks. Persons wishing to attend a good school would do well to call on Prof. Hocker; his terms are very reasonable.

Dr. S. J. Wedding has returned from Louisville Medical College and is looking for a place to locate here. We extend to you our hand, and welcome you to our community.

The Rosine correspondent, in last week's issue of the HERALD, says that there will be Sunday school here the 2d Sunday in June, 1882. Mr. David London, our Sunday school teacher, thinks Rev. Sam K. Cox has procured patent license that the school will probably open up at a much earlier date, say the 2d Sunday in April, 1882. The Rosine society can boast of one young gentleman; relative of Mr. John T. Martin. He reached here about 3 o'clock, A. M., Friday, the 4th inst.; his advent was not entirely unexpected and Dr. N. J. Rains was appointed as a committee of reception. He will probably make this his future home. It being inauguration day the little fellow became somewhat enthusiastic and was heard giving three cheers for Garfield and the Patent Office.

Valuable Farm for Sale.

I offer for sale my farm of 237 acres, situated on Green river, near Cromwell, Ohio county, Ky. 170 acres under fence and in a high state of cultivation. On the farm is a good meadow, orchard, garden, barn, corn crib and all other necessary out-buildings. The dwelling house is a neat frame building of six rooms, hall and porch.

Also two additional houses for tenants together with good water, tobacco warehouse, steamboat landing, etc. Terms reasonable. Apply on the farm.

BEN. M. THOMAS.

House and Lot for Sale.

A nice House and Lot in Hartford for sale. House new, of modern style, two and one stories high, five rooms, excellent out-buildings, good water and everything in perfect order. For terms and particulars call on the Editor of the HERALD. 7-7-1m.

Estray Notice.

Taken up as a stray by Jared T. Ashby, living on Grassy Creek, near the Hartford and Point Pleasant road, on the 8th inst., one heifer, aged about two years; red, with some white about her sides and legs, some white in face with short horns, and marked with split in right ear and under-slope in left ear, which I have appraised at eight dollars.

Witness my hand this 21st day of January, 1881.

W. L. ROWE, J. P. O. C.

Wonderfully Cheap.

From this date we will furnish the Hartford Herald and Weekly Courier-Journal one year, postage prepaid, to the same address, anywhere in the United States, for the small sum of $2 50 cash, paid to us in advance, free of agent's commission. This will not include premium book. We will let this offer stand long enough to try it on. Subscribers at once for your local paper and the great weekly of the southwest.

A Valuable Residence in Hartford for Sale.

A lot of six acres of ground with a two-story frame residence, containing seven rooms, a hall, back porch and two-story portico in front, good cellar, good well of water which never fails, a milk-house, hen-house, cow-house, buggy-house, stable, corn-crib, lasting water in lot, a nice garden, nice orchard, and in fact everything in perfect order. It is the place now occupied by W. C. Chapman. It will be sold on reasonable terms.

This is a chance for the most desirable home in Hartford. For further particulars call at this office. 6-47-17
